

Jason Borschow

President & CEO
Abarca

Healthcare is a part of Jason Borschow's DNA. He grew up in the business working at Borschow Drug, a medical supply and pharmaceutical distribution company started by his grandfather in 1951 and sold to Cardinal Health (CAH) in 2008.

After graduating from Harvard College and leading the sale of the family business in 2008, Jason launched Abarca, a pharmacy benefit management company with an entirely different approach to technology and business practices, and a corporate culture unlike any other company in the industry. The company serves over 3.2 million patients, managing over 75 million prescriptions transactions annually across Puerto Rico and the United States.

In 2018, EY named him Entrepreneur of the Year for financial and insurance services segment in the Florida region. In 2019, he was selected as an Endeavor Entrepreneur, a network that recognizes and supports high-impact entrepreneurs across the globe. He has also been committed to the success of various non-profit organizations including ConPRmetidos, Foundation for Puerto Rico, the Puerto Rico Healthcare Crisis Coalition, and the Young President's Organization.

Jason and his wife, Lauren, have three boys and live in San Juan.
